ADMINSISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NEWPORT,
BY CHANSTON & NORMAN,
127 THAMES STREET.

TUESDAY MORNING SEP. 16, 1851.

President Fillmore left Washington in the early train yesterday morning, arriving in New York last evening at 5 o'clock. The owners of the Bay State were to detain him until noon, when he would immediately return to the steamer, and take passage for this place; he will arrive here this morning between 8 and 9 A.M.

A salute will be fired from Fort Adams, by order of Col. Gates, the commanding officer, as the steamer comes around the Point. We have no information as to what other arrangements have been made for the reception of the President, up to the writing of this article, 6 o'clock P.M.

Certain officious locofoco's, and some others who were instrumental last winter in being used for the purpose of betraying the Whig party and the State into the hands of the locofoco's, were making some blustering about streets yesterday, and talking about what they intended to do. We should have been glad to have had President Fillmore received in a manner worthy of the officer and the man,—and to have had the arrangements by men, and by Whigs who were worthy to do the work,—which would have been the case, had it not been for this officiousness. However, Newport is a peculiar place, and we have a large number of little men who are always striving to make themselves great men, and whose only success is that they are always ridiculous. For an illustration, look at the conduct of a portion of the delegation from this town last winter, who assisted in the election of a locofoco Senator!

We learn that Gov. Lawrence will visit Boston, to-morrow, to attend the Rail Road celebration in that city. We presume that Gov. Lawrence will make all necessary arrangements to have express run to him, should the Telegraph be out of order, in case of an invasion or insurrection in Rhode Island, during his absence. The duties of the office are so extremely arduous, and the consequent responsibility so immense, that we presume His Excellency will not be absent from the State more than twenty-four hours. Our anxiety will be intense until His Excellency returns again.

We believe that it was proposed yesterday for Squire Finch to have an address written for him, which he was read to President Fillmore on his arrival here; but the idea was abandoned, as it was suggested that Squire Finch was not exactly the man for this duty, inasmuch as he assisted in betraying the Whig party last winter, in the Legislature, by voting for Charles T. Jarvis, a locofoco, for Senator.

The President will dine at the Yacht House this afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Hazard has been making extensive arrangements for the occasion, and will spread a very splendid table.—Any of our citizens who desire the honor of dining with the President, should avail themselves of this excellent opportunity.

GRAND FILLMORE BALL.

There will be a grand Ball at Bellevue Hall, THIS EVENING, in honor of Mr. E. Clancy, President Fillmore. The most ample arrangements have been made for the occasion, and we have every reason to believe that it will be the most brilliant affair of the season, and that it will be attended by a large crowd of ladies and gentlemen. The President and his family will be present. The Music will be by the U. S. Band from Fort Adams. Dancing will commence about 9 o'clock. Tickets for the Ball can be obtained at the office of the Bellevue House.

The first locomotive ever used in the United States is still in good running order on the Little Schuykill Railroad. It was built in Liverpool, England, by Edward Bury.

The Cincinnati Noopared says two sons of the late Gen. Lopez are among the students of St. Xavier College in that city.

Holmes will close his Daguerreotype Gallery, at the end of this week. He has taken an immense number of excellent pictures this summer, at an extreme low price, and, we believe, has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Those who desire to see them for only one dollar, should call at the gallery this week up to Monday, and secure one or two beautiful pictures. His rooms are opposite the Atlantic House.

Further Accounts of the Lopez Expedition, by one of the Band.

New York, Sept. 13.

Philip Van Vechten, who was connected with the Lopez expedition, and who arrived in the Wm. Field Scott, yesterday, publishes the following:

He says he first became connected with the expedition on the 30th of July last, and was appointed 1st lieutenant of company D, in Crittenden's regiment. The expedition left New Orleans at daybreak, Aug. 3, in the Pampero. The engine being out of order, they were towed to the mouth of the river, and remained there till the 6th. They then left for Key West intending to go to the river St. Johns, where they were to embark a light battery of artillery, with caissons, ammunition and harness complete, together with a number of cavalry guidons, and from thence were to run to the South side of Cuba, and land near as possible to Puerto Principe.

They arrived at Key West on the 10th. No pilot appearing, Lopez, with the Cubans and Hungarians, held a council of war, and decided to run immediately to Cuba. The next morning, owing to variations of the compass, by muskets being stacked near it, the Pampero was in plain sight of Moro Castle. The vessel was immediately headed northward and westward, and run out of sight of land.

Shortly after Lopez took the captain and crew of a Spanish schooner, and by threats of shooting him, compelled him to pilot him in.

The sentry on the walls of the fort near Bahia Honda saw and challenged the Pampero. The lights were put out, and the ship was run along to the westward, when she suddenly struck upon a coral reef, and in order to get her off, they were compelled to disembark the troops. This took place on the morning of the 12th.

The boats were fired upon by the Spanish. At daylight Lopez sent a pronunciamento to Los Pinos, in which he informed the inhabitants he was about to march upon them. He would give no quarter to any who did not join him, being without the means of transportation.

Lopez ordered Col. Crittenden to remain and protect the baggage, &c., together with one thousand musket cartridges, 3000 muskets, and 700 pounds of powder in kegs.

Lopez told Crittenden that he would send him at Los Pinos. He took with him 323 men, leaving 130 with Col. Crittenden.

At 11 o'clock that night started to join Lopez. Their advance was slow, and on the morning of the 13th, while eating breakfast, they were surprised by the report of musketry and the whistling of bullets, from a body of the Spaniards, 500 strong.

The Spaniards were repulsed, and nine killed. A short time after, they repeated the attack. Crittenden charged them, and forced them to retreat to a chapparal, from which as the patriots advanced, they opened a destructive fire.

Crittenden, finding he could not maintain his position, ordered a return, and the enemy again advanced. At this time Crittenden wished a small party to gain a position at the right flank of the enemy, to charge from that side at the same moment he charged on the front. Myself, with Lieut. Cross, and 20 men volunteered, and attained the position. After remaining about half an hour, and hearing nothing of Crittenden, we were compelled to retreat, leaving our baggage and stores.

The next morning we succeeded in joining Lopez at Los Pinos, half an hour before he marched from that place. Gen. Enca immediately attacked Lopez with a body of 800 men. After a hard fight the Spaniards retreated over 200 of their number, among whom were several of their highest officers, dead and wounded.

Lopez lost in killed and wounded, 30 men, among whom were Col. Dowman, Lieut. Lavisca, killed; Gen. Pragay, Captains Brigham and Goni, mortally wounded. Lopez rode entirely unharmed over the field through the hottest of the fire, occasionally applying a cowhide with a great deal of vigor to the shoulders of such men as he thought could be hurried a little faster.

On the morning of the 14th, Lopez marched into the mountains, leaving 17 wounded Spaniards and 13 of his men, who were bayoneted by the Spaniards, and their bodies piled in a heap at the foot of a hill.

On the 14th Lopez was attacked by 500 men. The action lasted 3 hours, on one of the hottest days ever experienced. The Spaniards retreated with a loss of 22 men. At the same moment that the Spaniards retreated in one direction, Lopez issued an order to retreat in an opposite one, and made a forced march of 15 miles in 5 hours, over a mountain road.

On the 15th, being still in the mountains, 2 leagues from Bahia, he was overtaken by a heavy rain storm, which destroyed the greater part of his ammunition, and rendered the fire-arms entirely useless.

On the morning of the 20th, the sentry was surprised and shot, and Lopez was completely routed—flying to the mountains. Lopez escaped on horseback, with nothing but what he wore.—He encamped on one of the highest mountains, exposed to the violence of a tempest Norther, with neither shelter, fire, or food. The sufferings of that night equalled an ordinary life-time. On the evening of the 21st, having been forty-eight hours without food, a horse was killed and divided among 125 men, who were all that remained with Lopez.

They wandered about until midday of the 24th, when a halt was ordered, and upon examination it was found that they had only 60 serviceable muskets, and about 49 dry cartridges. They commenced a retreat, when a force of 900 charged upon the party of Lopez, which dispersed, throwing away their arms and fled into the mountains 7 men only remaining with Lopez. A large number were overtaken and immediately killed.

We remained in the mountains until the morning of the 26th, having had but one meal in 6 days, when we learned it was better to be killed outright than to die a lingering death from starvation. We advanced to a house, received an excellent breakfast, and shortly after, in endeavoring to escape, were seized by 200 armed countrymen, and carried to San Cristobal. On the 28th we left for Havana.

An order was received from the Captain General to proceed to Mariel, and embark, he being fearful that the prisoners would be torn to pieces by the rabble of Havana.

We reached Mariel on the 30th, and embarked on board the steamer Almandare, when an express arrived, bringing information of the capture of Lopez, and the steamer was delayed to await his arrival, which took place on the 31st, when we immediately left for Havana.—Lopez was entirely at liberty, and smoked his cigar with much unconcern.

Outside the harbor of Mariel, Lopez was transferred to the steam frigate Pizarro, which conveyed him to Havana, and which he did not leave till the next morning, for the place of execution.

The remainder of us were confined that night in the city prison. The prisoners' heads were shaved, their whiskers cut off, and they were securely fastened in pairs by chains.

At the time of my release from prison, there were 160 prisoners关在牢房里, ten years hard labor in Spain.—They all appeared in good spirits, and were looking forward to a speedy release.

Lopez was caught by the bloodhounds in the mountains. The dogs, being some distance in advance of the men, bit him badly in the left leg. There were 17 countrymen in the party who captured him, each of whom was presented publicly with one thousand dollars, and a cross of honor, immediately after his execution.

Lieut. Van Vechten further says, that up to the time he left, the Spaniards could account for 271 Americans, including Crittenden's command, whom they had killed and wounded—men who were left on the field sick and fatigued, men who gave out on the march, and men whom they hunted down in the mountain with dogs. These, with 169 prisoners, make 431 accounted for—leaving a balance of 22, whose fate is yet unknown. Of these probably the greater portion are still alive in the mountains, and as the troops have all been recalled to Havana, some of them may yet succeed in getting home.

At the time I received my appointment from Mr. Segur, one of the editors of the N. O. Delta, I was told by him that a revolt was regularly organized among the Creoles throughout the Island; that they had elected Gen. Lopez as a leader; within ten days after landing, Lopez would be at the head of 10,000 men, and that two regiments of Spanish troops would come over to him with equipments.

As I have already stated, our first salutation was a volley of musketry. Instead of finding the Creoles our friends, we found them our enemies—keeping the troops constantly informed of our movements, and hanging on our skirts, putting to death all those who straggled on their march.

Of the troops I cannot but speak in praise, without a single exception—giving the prisoners wine, bread, cigars and tobacco.

Much has been said relating to the mutilation of the bodies. Such, however, is not the fact. It is reported that Crittenden wrote home that he was abandoned by Lopez, without arms or ammunition. Such is not the fact.—Lopez did not desert him, but in dividing his command, committed one of those men to a nearly fatal expedition, he had neither. The letter, &c., of the Juntas purporting to be from Cuba, and published in July last, were base forgeries, written to deceive the citizens of the United States, and to advance the sale of the Cuban bonds.

No charge of negligence can be attached to Mr. Owen, our Consul, as he was not only unable to do anything for the prisoners, but was himself in danger of his life by the robbers; and a guard was placed over his property and person by order of the Captain General. Avarice, not philanthropy, was the mainspring of this expedition.

BY TELEGRAPH.

SAVANNAH, Sept. 12.

Surrender of the Pampero.—The steamer Pampero has surrendered to the Revenue Cutter at Jacksonville, Florida. Mr. Sigur, of the New Orleans Delta, and John O'Sullivan, were at Jacksonville.

Arrest of Rioters at Christiansburg.—In relation to the murders and riot, near Christiansburg, growing out of the attempted arrest of a slave, last week, we learn that two whites and nine negroes have been arrested and committed to Lancaster jail. Several citizens of Lancaster county are aiding the officers, and the most intense excitement exists in that section of the State.

Later Accounts.—More Arrests.—We have a despatch this evening from Philadelphia, which states that the U. S. Marshal, District Attorney Ashmead, Commissioner Ingraham, attended by 50 U. S. troops, went to Christiansburg yesterday, and made 24 arrests, in addition to the 12 before reported. Most of the prisoners are colored, and were armed with guzis, dirks, &c. The excitement continues unabated. Not less than 100 negroes are reported to have been concerned in resisting the officers. The firing commenced from the house, at a signal. A large number of negroes came armed to the defense of the inmates. Young Gorsuch is still alive.

NOTICE.

The negotiations between Austria and Denmark had taken an unfavorable turn. Austrian troops would not evacuate the Duchies so soon as had been anticipated.

The Emperor of Austria has published a proclamation in which he declares that Austria is henceforth to be governed absolutely.

NAPLES.

The Neapolitan Government is in a state of dissolution. The Minister of Finance has declared the impossibility of meeting the expense of the State with the present revenue.

The Queen, who is opposed to the present ministry, considers that the political offenders should be put to death, and not tortured. The last accounts state a new ministry had been formed. That the King had applied to Rothchild for a loan, but that the House refused, unless by decree his majesty had declared his intention to repudiate the constitution.

NOTICE.

The Committee appointed to receive the President of the United States, beg to notify the public that he is expected to arrive here on Tuesday, the 16th inst., at noon 7 to 11 o'clock, A. M., in the steamer Bay State, from New York; and that on landing at the Long Wharf he will be received there by the Committee, and have a military and civic escort, thence passing down Thunney and up Pelham and South Tuxedo streets, to his lodgings at the Bellevue Hotel. Citizens and strangers are respectfully requested to be present, and join the procession. For the Committee, GEO. G. KING, Chairman, Newport, Sept. 15, 1851.

The Floating bridge across Lake Champlain is completed, and trains of cars now regularly pass over it. Boston and New York are connected by railroad with Lake Ontario, by way of Burlington, Vt., as well as by way of Albany.
